GENEVIEVE,

From the French of Hyppolyte Etiennez.

Translated for the Commercial Journal.

Mlle. de Laon had been a witness to the entire scene between Genevieve and the duke of Edesse; and the sight of it had excited, in her, an indignation equal to her surprise, when suddenly she saw a letter fall from the captain's pocket to the pavement of the Gallery. Immediately, yielding to a fatal presentiment, she left the side of her governess, and ran to pick up the unlucky paper. It was Genevieve's letter. Mlle. de Laon hurriedly perused it, and comprehended all in an instant. Still, a doubt remained: why had Genevieve fainted? was it from joy or grief? what flower, in a word, had the duke chosen? It was indeed, for her, a question of life or death. After a moment of irresolution and inexpressible anguish, she said:

"Oh! I will know it!"

And without considering what might be the consequences of so imprudent a step, she dashed off alone in pursuit of the duke.

As she reached the rue St. Louis, the back-door closed; and the horses started off at a gallop; nevertheless, she tried to follow them, but despite all her efforts the two fugitives escaped her.

Then Clara stopped; she looked around and sought her governess. Bewildered in the midst of steets with which she was entirely unacquainted, and through which she had never passed but in a carriage, she inquired the way to the place royale. But Mme. de Bruze, as uneasy as she was, had left that place in order to go in pursuit of Mlle. de Laon, Clara ran hither and thither, and already some tears had began to escape her eyelids, when a handsome soldier passed near her. It was our acquaintence Julian the drummer. The merry guardsman soon perceived the embarrassing position of the young girl. Her dress, her fright, her tears, all showed that she was a stranger, and had lost her way. Here was a glorious opportunity for a conquest! Immediately the young soldier arranged his batteries; he adjusted his uniform, dusted his boots with his handkerchief, curled his mustachios, began to strut like a peacock, and arming himself with his most dangerous smile, he resolutely approached the sad and unhappy child.

"Charming weeper," said the soldier, "you seem to be looking for something——if it is a heart unhurt by Cupid's arrows or an avenging arm, you have only to speak, both are at your service."

At those words, pronounced near her ear, Clara turned her head and perceived at her shoulders the thick mustachios and sparkling eyes of the soldier; but, instead of being frightened, she looked upon him as an aid sent from heaven, and stopping suddenly, she said:

"Sir Soldier, I am looking for my mother,"

"Oh! parbleu! answered Julian, I have none to offer you; and that for the very best of reasons; but, if you wish it, we will look for yours together.

"No, said she, take me to the rue Coquillere; we live there, and probably I will find her at home."

"With pleasure."

Mlle. de Laon put her naked arm within that of the drummer and let her hand hang down negligently. At the sight of this arm and hand so beautifully white, the guardsman could not refrain from an exclamation.

"Oh! oh! the devil!! cried he."

"What is the matter? asked Mlle. de Laon."

"Nothing——Merely a dazzling in the eyes; but, mistress of my heart, it seems that in your country, the girls do not scratch the earth with their fingers!"

Clara understood the drummer's remark, but from fear of compromising herself she kept silent.

"Come, no matter, continued the soldier, forward! march!"

And off they went.

Whilst walking the young girl glanced around her uneasily, endeavoring to discover Mme. de Bruze; as for the drummer he was so proud and so perfectly satisfied, that he would, doubtless willingly have consented to pass eight days under arrest, if the whole regiment only could have seen him at that moment.

They soon entered the rue Coquillere, and they had not gone far before they met a woman with her eyes full of tears and a disordered countenance; it was Mme. de Bruze.

"Ah! Mademoiselle, said she, you have almost caused me to die with fear." At this exclamation, the soldier cast a look of surprise on the young girl.

"Mademoiselle! thought he."

"My dear friend, replied Mlle. de Laon, I lost my way."

"Oh! let us return quickly, in heaven's name; they may discover our absence."

Clara had perfectly understood the presumptuous intention with which Julian had accosted her; she turned towards him, and making a profound courtesy, said mischievously:

"Sir, soldier, I thank you greatly for your kindness. Before parting, be so good as to tell me your name, in order that I may forever treasure it in my memory:"

Julian, who took all this pleasantry in earnest, replied with eagerness.

"Mademoiselle, they call me Julian; I am a drummer in the French Guards."

Mlle. de Laon bade him farewell, and disappeared with her governess through an alley-gate which closed behind them. Julian remained perfectly stupified. He was still there, motionless, with open mouth, and vacant stare, when Mlle. de Laon and Mme. de Bruze came out of the house, clad, this time, in their proper dresses. At this sight, Julian struck his forehead with great energy.

"I would have bet on it, said he; they are some great ladies!"

Then concealing himself behind a sedan chair which was standing at that moment, in the street, he let the two women pass and followed them at a distance, determined to know who was the owner of that admirable hand which had rested, for an instant, on his arm. Presently they reached the rue de Bourbon, and stopped before a splendid mansion, on the door of which was inscribed in golden letters on a black marble ground, the words: Hotel de Laon.

"By Jupiter! cried the soldier."

Mme. de Bruze rapped at the door, which opened immediately, and was about closing again, when Julian approached the liveried Swiss, who kept the entrance to this magnificent dwelling.

"Illustrious Cerberus, said he, is not that Mlle. de Laon?"

"Yes——what matters that to you?"

"It matters me a great deal——of pleasure."

Then wheeling rapidly on his heels, he performed a pirouette with his heavy rapier in such a manner as to strike reedely against the legs of the insolent porter.

The motion of the carriage soon aroused Genevieve from her swoon. She opened her eyes, and casting a fearful look around her, said:

"Where am I?"

"With a friend, replied Pierre, with a kindly smile.

"You here, my lord duke?——Where are you taking me to?"

"To your home, my dear child?"

Genevieve sunk into the corner of the carriage, and concealed her face with her hands. Doubtless, she wished to hide from her companion the deep blush which was coloring her cheeks, but her bosom, which heaved violently, betrayed, in despite of her, her trouble and emotion. Pierre looked upon the young girl with ecstacy; but, either through timidity or respect, he dared not break the silence, still, the carriage continued to go on; and in a few minutes more, its arrival at the young florist's dwelling would put an end to this delicious tete-a-tete.—Pierre knew well the value of this opportunity, and, banished, on the instant, every scruple; he took the young girl's hand, and said:

"Genevieve, why do you conceal yourself."

In feeling the captain touch her, Genevieve trembled, and raised her eyes which were full of tears.

"You weep, resumed the nobleman——Oh, if it is I who cause those tears to flow, pardon me, Genevieve, for God knows I would give up my life to render you happy——Listen——time presses, and I have in my bosom a secret that weighs heavily upon me——I love you——deeply——desparately.

At these words, the young girl began to tremble violently; and a joyous smile lightened up her countenance; but it soon passed away, and, sadly shaking her head, she said:

"You—a great lord, in love with a poor girl like me! It is impossible."

"Yes, Genevieve, I love you; but why pretend ignorance of it? You know it well; every thing proves that you have read my heart, as the step you have just taken, the letter which you wrote to me and your fainting prove, that I have rightly read yours."

In seeing her secret thoughts thus divined and known, Genevieve experienced, at first, a kind of inexpressible stupor and confusion; but, since it was useless to feign any longer, she immediately determined how to act.

"Yes, my lord Duke," she said, "you love me—I believe it—and I also love you; but this love is a terrible misfortune.

"Why so?"

"The distance which separate us, is impassable."

"I can make you my equal."

"And Mlle. de Laon?:

In uttering these words, Genevieve fixed a piercing look on the young man.

"Mlle. de Laon!" replied he; "I do not love her; she has never loved me; neither oath, affection, nor sympathy exists between us; our marriage is the fancy of parents more anxious for the rank and fortunes, than for the happiness of their children. As long as I was at liberty, I submitted to this family arrangement; but when I first saw you, Genevieve, this union became impossible; and MEe. de Laon, I am confident, when I have expressed to her my aversion for this marriage, will join with me in desiring to break the engagement."

"But my lord Duke," said the young girl, "before offering me your heart and hand, do you know whether I am worthy of them?"

"Genevieve," replied Pierre, smiling, "you wish to test me, and I forgive you of it. Yes, you are worthy of my adoration, for you are the most virtuous and most beautiful of all women; cease, then, to oppose yourself to my happiness."

"Alas!" said Genevieve, "if I do as you desire, do you believe that your family, even supposing that they would not regard my birth as an insurmountable objection, would ever consent to a union, so opposed to their most cherished designs?"

"Yes, dearest, I know that; but what does it matter. We can readily free ourselves from this difficulty. I am very unhappy, Genevieve; I have seen my best founded pretentions passed by ungratefully with disdain; I have seen my fortune vanishing like a cloud, without having the privilege of complaining of, or preventing my ruin. To-day I am only a simple captain, without credit and without credit. What have I to do in the midst of the selfish and corrupt world which surrounds us? I have only one hope—that of uniting my destiny with yours; let us fly, then, from this accursed land; and, in doing so, I will owe you more than I shall lose—for I will be indebted to you, Genevieve, for my happiness."

"Oh! heaven!" exclaimed the florist, "give up your hopes for the future, abandon your family, expatriate yourself, and all this for me! no, no; I could not permit it, my lord Duke, it is impossible."

"Genevieve," said Pierre, falling at the young girl's feet, "you are inexorable! What is left to me on earth if you thus avoid me? I must die!"

The happiness which Genevieve felt at this moment, was so great, that she scarcely dared to credit it; she wished to reply, but had no longer the power to do so. Suddenly, the carriage stopped. Pierre trembled, and getting up suddenly, said:

"All hope, then, is over!"

At this moment, doubtless. Genevieve, also, felt the pangs and despair which a separation would have caused them.

"No," said she, "since you wish it, be happy."

"Oh! thanks!" exclaimed the young man, "thanks, thanks!"

Progress of Improvement.

An Edinburgh paper, the Phœnix, embodies some of the changes and improvements of the last seventy years in the form of a prophecy, as if it had been uttered before the American war, Anno Domino 1770. The prophecy, if then published, would have gained little credence. It is now but a recapitulation of familiar historical events.

In seven years from this time the British empire shall be rent in twain (American war in 1776.) In fifteen years men shall rise from the air (invention of balloons, 1735.) In twenty years the French monarchy, the oldest that ever was, and now so flourishing, shall come to an end. A virtuous prince, (Louis XVI. 1793,) not yet king, shall in twenty-three years lay down his life on the scaffold; his wife and sister shall share the same fate. In those days news shall travel with the speed of the wind, and what was done at mid-day shall be known at the farthest bounds of the kingdom ere the setting of the sun (the telegraph, 1794.) In twenty-six years a conqueror shall arise (Buonaparte,) who shall water his horses in the Nile, the Jordan, the Tagus, and the Borysthenes. This conqueror shall restore the chair of St. Peter, and throw down what he had restored (dethronement of Pius VII.) Finally, he whom the world could not contain, shall die a captive, on a rocky island, (St. Helena,) neither in Europe, Asie, Africa, nor America, but in the midst of the vast ocean; a few feet of earth his empire, a willow his monument.

In those days metal shall be found which shall float on the water, and burn under it, (sodium, potassium, discovered by Sir Humphrey Davy.) Ships shall stem the stormiest ocean without sails or oars (steam ships.) Carriages shall run without horses with the speed of the wind (locomotive engines.) The ordinary speed of the wind is thirty-five miles an hour; that of the engine in the Great Western Railway is thirty-nine. Man shall be conveyed from India to the mighty Babylon in a month; to America in ten days; from one end of England to the other in eight hours.

Bridges shall hang by a chain over the sea, while roads shall be made under it (the Mearl bridge and the Thames Tunnel.) To these days of blood-shed shall succeed days of liberty. The negro shall no longer be bought or sold. The slave shall be set free. The Greek shall be freed from the Turk; the Catholic from the Orangemen. The very beasts in those days shall have laws to protect them. Those days shall be days of great light. Men shall plough without horses (steam plough;) they shall spin without hands (power looms;) they shall calculate by wheels (Babbage's Machine;) the sun shall engrave for them (Daguerrotype;) they shall write with the lightning (electric telegraph.) One machine shall print in one hour many thousand books, each of which shall take a man many days to read; a man may buy a book for a penny; for a penny he may send it to the ends of the empire. They shall read the rock instead of a book (geology) and decipher the history of beings which lived and died ere man existed. In the heavens new stars shall be discovered; some, brothers of the sun (the planets, five in number, discovered since the American war; and the double stars by Sir William Herschel;) and of all the colors of the rainbows; in those days, likewise, they shall read the Pyramids (Young's and Champhollion's discoveries.) They shall find out the mouth of the Niger and the Magnetic Pole; the way to every thing shall have been discovered—but the way to be happy.

☞ WESTERN UNIVERSITY.—The Board of Trustees of the Western University of Pennsylvania, will meet on Tuesday, THIS DAY, at 3 o'clock, at the office of Black & Liggett, Fourth street. By order of the President.
jan 19-2t A. W. BLACK, Sec'y.

☞ A Tax Payer has his say this morning. He is entitled to a place in our columns, but it is perhaps proper for us to disclaim all knowledge of the subject of his complaint, and to ask that we shall not be regarded as approving his very severe imputations.

☞ Councils met last evening. A resolution was passed deferring the appointment of Superintendant of Water Works, until the stated meeting in February, and instructing a Committee, whose appointment is provided for, to report a new system for the government of the Water Works. A communication was received from the Mayor, announcing the appointment of Messrs. Bigler, Sargent and Bigler, of the Morning Post, and Robt. M Riddle, of the Commercial Journal, city printers; Messrs. Whitney, Dumars & Co., Job Printers, and Messrs. Johnston & Stockton, Stationers for the city.

The communication was unanimously approved. After balloting for choice of seats, the Councils adjourned to meet this day, at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the election of city officers.

Mr. Allen's Resolution.

On the 13th inst., at Washington, Mr. Allen of the United States Senate, asked leave to introduce a joint resolution, declaratory of the principles by which the government of the United States would be governed in regard to the interposition of the powers of Europe, in the political affairs of America. The resolution expresses an approbation of the policy stated in the President's Message, and declares "to the civilized world the unalterable resolution of the United States to adhere to and enforce the principle, that any effort of the Powers of Europe to intermeddle in the social organizations or political arrangements of America, or further to extend the European system of Government upon this continent, by the establishment of new colonies be incompatable with the independent existence of the Nations, and dangerous to the liberties of the people of America; and would therefore would incur as by the right of preservation it would justify the prompt resistance of the United States."

The motion for leave to introduce the resolution was opposed by Mr. Calhoun. He coincided in his feelings, in condemning the interference of the Powers of Europe, with this Continent; "but it was a great question, whether we should take the guardianship of THE WHOLE CONTINENT, under our protection, as proposed by this joint resolution!" If we make this declaration, we must act up to it, and immediately put forth the entire energies of the country, for a state of war to all opposition.

In reply to an observation from Mr. Calhoun, Mr. Allen admitted that he had introduced the resolution on his own authority, and without consultation with the other members of the Committee on Foreign relations. When it is considered that Mr. Allen is the Chairman of that Committee, and that he had taken this important step without consulting the other members of the Committee, his conduct must be regarded as very censurable.

Mr. Calhoun spoke with severe and merited rebuke of the assumption of the honorable gentleman in this unprecedented course. "If there were no other reasons, why we should not give leave for the introduction of the resolution, this of itself would be sufficient." But, in truth, if we adopt a solemn and official declaration of this kind, we must become a great military government. The entire Continent would be under our protection, and we must, at once, repel the interference of France and England in the concerns of Buenos Ayres.

Mr Jarnagin, after some remarks, moved that the motion of Mr. Allen be laid upon the table.—Mr. Allen said he wished it to be understood that he would consider the vote to be taken on such a motion as final on his resolution. The question was then taken on Mr. Jarnagin's motion, and it was decided in the affirmative yeas 23, nays 23; which we presume, under the circumstances, may not only by Mr. Allen, but by all others, be considered as final upon the resolution, as it was brought forward by him.

Horrible Case of Lynching.

A noted negro thief, by the name of Yeoman, having been arrested near Albany, Georgia, and subsequently discharged by Judge Warren, on a writ of habeas 'corpus, was immediately re-arrested, says the Savannah Republican, and conveyed at once to Florida. On his way thither, he confessed to the persons in whose charge he was, that he was one of an organized gang of negro thieves and murderers—that during the Florida war, they had carried on their operations under the disguise of Indians, and that since the war they had stolen negroes in Thomas and Lowndes counties, Georgia, and Jefferson county, Florida, to the value of about $10,000. He confessed his guilt in detail, and offered them $1000 cash for his release, alleging that if he wrs carried to Florida, he would be unceremoniously hanged.

On his arrival in Jefferson county, Florida, the citizens assembled to the number of ninety, and after an investigation of the facts, took a formal vote, which resulted sixty-seven in favor of hanging, and twenty-three against it. Yeoman was accordingly executed at 12 o'clock, on the 2d instant.

Distressing Report.

A letter from Honesdale, to a respectable house in New York, dated 12th January, says:—"We have just heard that the mines at Carbondale, Pa. fell in to-day, at 10 A. M., burying, report says, a great many men. It appears that while the miners were engaged in their labor, from four to five acres suddenly caved in upon those in the mine, literally burying them alive. It was supposed that from fifteen to thirty were in the mines at the time of the dreadful calamity. Three of the laborers has been dug out before the report left Honesdale a place near Carbondale. They were of course dead.

A family Poisoned.

We learn from Burlington, N. J., says the Harrisburg Telegraph, that a family in that neighborhood were recently poisoned, in consequence of the Swamp Sumac having been used in a steaming process, instead of the Magnolia. None but those who have suffered from vegetable poison, can imagine the agony this family endured.

☞ When the Railroad through France to Marseilles is completed, the trip between London and Alexandria, in Egypt, will be accomplished in seven days, Steamers now take fifteen days.

Twenty-ninth Congress.

FIRST SESSION.

From the Washington Union of Saturday night.

WASHINGTON, Jan'y 17.

The Senate was not in session to-day.

In the House some time was spent in committee on the bill to carry into effect the convention with Peru, of March, 1841. Some debate on the minor details of the bill took place.

The discussion was abruptly suspended about two o'clock, and the committee rose for the purpose of receiving in the House the announcement, by Mr. Dromgoole, of the death, sudden and unexpected, of his colleague, Mr. Taylor, in consequence of which no further business will be transacted in either house until the following day.

A Pleasant Surprise.

We have received through the post-office the subjoined expressive and laconic epistle.

PITTSBURGH, Jan'y. 17, 1846.

R. M. RIDDLE, Esq.,

Sir:—You will please take notice that in accordance with an ordinance passed January 27th, 1845, authorizing the Mayor to appoint city printers, you have been chosen one of the printers for the ensuing year.

WM. KERR, Mayor.

An excellence of epistolary, and indeed of all writing, is to convey much in few words, and of that excellence Dr. Kerr, we beg pardon, the Mayor, is master. Here are elegance, terseness, directness and conciseness combined, and a whole volume contained in five lines of manuscript.—These five lines are at once an acknowledgement of the superior circulation of the Commercial Journal, of the decorous conduct of our paper, of our great merits as a Whig Journalist, and of our striking antagonism to the Democratic Morning Post.* More numerous and more striking truths were never connected in so brief space.

We will strive to bear our honors meekly.—Perhaps our great difficulty will be to bear with becoming modesty, the preference which exalts us over others, who will, we dare say, flatter themselves that their claims are stronger than ours. But as this appointment has been conferred upon us, wholly without solicitation on our part, direct or indirect, the other claimants will not, we are sure, quarrel with our elevation.

We have alluded to the new Mayor as a gentleman of unexceptionable character, but of horrible politics; it is due to him now that we shall amend the declaration, by adding that he is a most admirable writer. Touching the politics, we have nothing to retract.

*It was Dr. Kerr who moved in Councils a resolution giving the printing to a paper of each party, Democratic and Whig. He very properly practises on his own rule.

The Tariff.

The following resolutions on the Tariff, extracted from the Union, of Harrisburgh, exhibit the action in our State Senate, in relation to that portion of the Governor's Message, which speaks on this important subject.

From the reports in circulation, concerning the intentions of Mr. Polk and his party friends at Washington, it is to be feared, that notwithstanding the known wishes of the people, the Tariff will find no favor with a majority of the Democratic members in Congress.

How inconsistent or unthinking are mere party politicians! Did not the Democratic party leaders in Pennsylvania, know that Mr. Polk and the southern influence by which he was nominated, were opposed not only to the existing Tariff, but to any adequate protection of American industry—that in fact, his peculiar party friends, were free trade men. Yet, they elect such a person to the office of Chief Magistrate, and then a Resolution is unanimously adopted in our State Senate; reciting "Where as it is believed, that the people of Pennsylvania are opposed to any alteration in the existing Tariff." Certainly, they are! but was it not indiscreet then to elect an anti-tariff President!

Yet, notwithstanding the hostility of President Polk to the known favorite measures of Pennsylvania, it is necessary for us to put them forward before the nation, that nothing may be left undone on our part. We cannot undo what is past, but we may be more careful for the future; and Pennsylvanians by the dear bought experience, which they are now likely to attain, will learn more wisdom and consistency in future Presidential elections.

It gives us much pleasure that these Tariff resolutions at Harrisburgh, were adopted by the Senate unanimously:

RESOLUTIONS RELATIVE TO THE TARIFF.—The select committee of the senate, to whom that part of the Governor's Message, relative to the Tariff was referred, introduced yesterday the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, the Tariff of 1842, produces no more than sufficient revenue to defray the necessary expenses of the General Government, and only affords an adequate incidental protection to American industry, and, whereas manufactures against foreign competition, to commercial enterprise, agriculture, pursuits, and to the developement of our own internal resources.

AND, WHEREAS, it is believed that the people of Pennsylvania are opposed to any alteration in the existing Tariff, until further experience has shown that a modification is required to secure a continuance of such protection, and to promote their general welfare. Therefore Resolved, &c., That our Senators and Representatives in Congress, be and they are hereby requested to oppose all attempts to alter or modify the tariff act of the 30th of August, 1842.

Resolved, That the Governor be requested to transmit a copy of the above preamble and resolution to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

Employment Solicited.

We cut the following from the Baltimore Clipper, of the 15th inst. The editor of the Clipper, it will be seen, says of the person who solicits to be employed, "having known him many years, and believing that he is honest and faithful, we hope that he may be furnished with employment, which will supply bread to himself and family." The afflicted man seeks employment to defend himself against starvation. What volumes does this fact speak!

"THE POOR.—It is the general opinion that he who is honest, industrious and possessed of physical strength, can always obtain a decent support by his labor. In general, the opinion may be correct; but there are exceptions to the rule, as will be seen by reference to an advertisement in another part of this paper, and we have no doubt that other similar cases exist. Little compassion is felt for the man who, by idleness and dissipation becomes reduced in his circumstances; but every one should feel an interest in the individual who seeks but cannot obtain employment, by which to earn his daily bread by the sweat of his brow." Such is the man who advertises in today's paper—and, having known him for many years, and believing that he is honest and faithful, we hope that he may be furnished with employment which will supply bread to himself and family."

"Urged by the most pressing wants, occasioned by losses and other untoward misfortunes, an elderly man is forced to make an appeal to the public, and particularly to the commercial community, for some employ. He is sober, industrious, not to proud to make himself useful in any branch of business, well acquainted with every part of the city, has had great experience in trade, keeps books by double and single entry and is conversant with several languages. He does not boast of having defended his country in time of need, but is anxious to get employ, now in need himself, to enable him to defend himself against starvation. Apply for reference to the printers."

☞ Another of the Mormon elders, Mr. O. Olney has come out with a pamphlet expose of what he terms 'Spiritual Wifery at Nauvoo." He endorses the statement of Smith with regard to the corruptions of their doctrine, and gives as a reason for his own course in the matter that he expected to find Nauvoo a place of peace and piety, but found it just the contrary. Brigham Young says, (according to Olney's account,) "The Bible is no more to the people of this generation than a last year's almanac, for I am all the Bible needful for people now, if they obey my counsel"

☞ Col Pierce M. Butler, of South Carolina, was at Shreveport, La., a short time since, engaged in running a line between the United States territory and the Camanches.

From Mexico.

By the schooner Joaquina, Martinez, master, which sailed from Tampico on the 1st inst., and arrived here yesterday, we learn that Gen. Paredes had raised the standard of revolution, and marched upon Mexico with 6,000 men. The administration had no means of opposing his progress, and the probability was that before the vessel sailed he was in possession of the government. The policy of Herrera towards the United States has been the proximato cause of the revolution—the war-cry having been raised throughout the country, and the mob of soldiers and others excited to that pitch of madness which would induce them to attempt the overthrow of any government that counsellec peace with this country. If Paredes has succeeded, the mission of Mr. Slidell will of course be unsuccessful, and the two countries will remain in a state of doubtful hostilities, which it will be the duty of our government to bring to an immediate termination.

The latest dates which the Joaquina brought from the city of Mexico, are to the 13th ult.—later were received some days since by the St. Mary's from Vera Cruz. In the papers we find nothing worth translating. The abuse of the government by the opposition journals, and the weak defence made by the papers in the interest of the government, are too familiar to our readers to deserve repetition.—N. O. Delta.

From the Pennsylvania Intelligencer.

Call for a Whig State Convention.

We issue an extra, for the purpose of publishing at the earliest period the call for a Whig State Convention, to nominate a Candidate for the office of Canal Commissioner, made by the Whig members of the Senate and House of Representatives. The reasons for this movement are clearly laid down in the subjoined Address. The members of the State Central Committee regard their labors as having ceased, and the present movement is, therefore, indispensably necessary, in order to preserve the State organization of the Whig party.—We feel certain that it will be cordially responded to in every part of the State, and hope to witness the assembling of a Convention on the 11th of March, which shall be distinguished alike for numbers, intelligence and public feeling.

At a meeting of the Whig members of the Pennsylvania Legislature, held in Harrisburgh, Jan. 13, 1846, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to prepare a call for a Whig State Convention, to be held in Harrisburgh, on the 11th day of March, 1846, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the office of Canal Commissioner, and that said call be published, with the names of the Whig members of the Legislature appended.

J. P. SANDERSON, Prest.

THOMAS NICHOLSON, JOHN E. EDIE. } Secretaries.

In accordance with the foregoing, the committee intrusted with that duty, respectfully submit the following address:

The Whig members of the General Assembly, now in session at Harrisburg, on consulting together in relation to matters important to the interests of the Commonwealth, find that no provision has been made for nominating a Whig candidate for the office of Canal Commissioner, to be voted for at the ensuing General Election in October. The office is one of high responsibility and importance—its patronage is extensive, and its influence upon the finances of our State, immense. The present crisis of affairs in Pennsylvania, imperatively demands that the office should be filled by a man of integrity and sound principles—honest and capable—not to be corrupted by grasping selfishness, nor diverted from the straight forward course of duty, by party fear or political favor.—The wasteful extravagance of the dominant party has involved our State in an enormous debt of over forty millions of dollars—our taxes are enormous—the honest farmer and the hard-working mechanic have been deluded and deceived by incorrect financial statements, made for party purposes—and hungry office-holders have fattened on the public resources, while the Commonwealth has been bro't to the verge of bankruptcy.

All these evils are justly chargeable upon the party in power, and we believe the time has come for the Whigs of the State to arouse to energetic action, and endeavor to put a stop to the continuance of such monstrous abuses. The first step in the accomplishment of this great end, is an earnest effort to secure the election of a sound Whig, as Canal Commissioner. Let a candidate be selected of known integrity, of competent talents, of practical ability, thoroughly acquainted with the State, and possessing a perfect knowledge of the public works—let him receive the cordial support of the Whig party of the State, and the probabilities are strong that his election will be secured, and a check at once be placed on the irregular, excessive and ruinous policy of those in power.

Another subject of deep interest to the whole people of the State, is the evident intention on the part of the State Administration, to abandon the Protective Policy. The recent annual message of the Governor, lends irresistibly to this belief.—Pending the late Presidential election, the "Tariff of '42" was inscribed on the banners of the Locofoco party. Now these banners are no longer visible, and the message of the Executive advocates, clearly and decidedly, a "Revenue Tariff, with incidental protection;" and the same ruinous sentiments have been openly avowed by leading Democrats on the floor of the House of Representatives. For the first time in the history of our State, has this doctrine been avowed among us, by any Administration—for the first time has a Governor of Pennsylvania dared to desert the true interests of the State, and prove recreant to that policy which protects alike the farmer, the mechanic and the manufacturer, and promotes the prosperity of all. Shall not the rebuke be speedy and effectual?—Will not every man, whether Whig or Democrat, who regards his own interests, who loves his State, and would see it free from the embarressment of debt, and its people thriving, successful and happy, repel this monstrous aggression upon the protective policy?

In this emergency it behooves the Whig party to act promptly and with vigor. The State Administration has instituted another progress of the Protective Policy, and what is of vital importance to the Whig party, and what is of infinitely more the substantial interests of the State, more than adhesion to party, should be given without delay. We trust that the voters of Pensylvania will be no longer deceived by the false professions of political leaders—we trust that every man who reads and thinks, will examine and see for himself, this political treachery—we trust that the intelligent voters of every county, township and ward, will rally as one man, denounce the shameful dereliction of Locofoco leaders, and unitedly sustain, with a cordial action, the Whig policy of a PROTECTIVE TARIFF—a policy essentially necessary to develope the resources, and secure the prosperity of the State, and properly to reward the industry and enterprise of the people.

In view of this position of affairs, the Whig members of the Senate and House of Representatives, believe it to be their duty to suggest that the Whigs of the State meet in State Convention, for the purpose of nominating a CANDIDATE FOR CANAL COMMISSIONER—of deliberating upon subjects essential to the welfare of the State, and of making arrangements for a strong, decided, and overwhelming expression of opinion at the ballot boxes in October. They accordingly recommend, that the usual number of delegates be immediately chosen in the several counties of the Commonwealth, and that the State Convention assemble at Harrisburg, on WEDNESDAY, the 11th day of March next.

PHILIP D. THOMAS,
CHARLES B. TREGO,
Members of the House of Representatives.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15, 1846.

☞ PHYSIC DISARMED OF ITS TERRORS.—Every person is interested in hearing that Dr. Clickener, of New York, has invented a medicine of the most certain and powerful purgative qualities, which is yet so gentle that its operations on the system are entirely unfelt. Its action is altogether unattended with griping or nausea, and still more to enhance its value, it is coated with white sugar, so that it leaves no unpleasant taste in the mouth. In fact, its flavor is so much like physic and its action is so perfectly gentle, that any person may swallow a dose without suspecting that he has taken physic at all, unless through its ultimate effect, which is powerful and positive, even on the most costive constitutions. We need not comment on those great advantages of Clickener's Sugar Coated Vegetable Purgative Pills, over other medicines, as they must be obvious to all, for there are but few persons who do not require physic occasionally, and fewer still who have not a rooted aversion to the nauseous and racking compounds which, before the appearance of these Pills, were the only characters which physic ever assumed. In less than five years, Clickener's Sugar Coated Vegetable Pills will supercede all other purgative medicines, for no person will consent to have his stomach turned, and his bowels racked with the old fashioned preparations, when he might have the desired object accomplished much more thoroughly by a new one, whose effect is unaccompanied by the slightest offensive sensation. jan 20-1y

BRANDY.—2 half pipes "pinet castellon" Brandy, on consignment and for sale by J. W. BUTLER & BRO. jan 14 Front street.

For the Commercial Journal.

MR. RIDDLE:—Some days since, I called on the Water Committee, through the medium of your paper, to give the reasons why they had given the contract for making water pipes to a member of their Committee, at an advance of over $500, above another bidder, equally good, if not better. No reason has been offered by them in extenuation of their conduct. The Committee reassembled and reaffirmed the contract as before! Can it be possible that the Committee think their decision honest and disinterested? I should say it was dishonest in any set of men, acting as public agents, thus willfully to squander the money of the city, by rewarding a favorite, a fellow member of the Committee, and particularly after they had been warned of the injustice done to an individual bidder. This last act of the Committee, looks like a determination on their part, to persist in a wrong, and treat with contempt, all admonitions to the contrary. Now Gentlemen of the Committee, you can not put at defiance the rights of the people and all the principles of justice, nor can you shield yourselves by stating that the individual to whom you have given the contract, is the best bidder; there is no better man in the city for making castings, of all kinds, than the individual making the lowest bid, which you have chosen to reject, in violation of every principle which has been recognized for the government of men having the charge of public business. Your whole movements seem to be of a strange character. However, this particular act will not appear so strange, when it is known that this is the same Committee who directed to be laid in Front street, between Market and Wood streets, a pipe, 3 in. diameter, connecting with a 6 in. pipe at each end, thereby yielding a supply of water only of a 6 in. pipe, costing the city double the price of a 6 in. pipe! This is one more evidence of the wisdom of the Committee. Now, any set of men, who did not know that an 8 in. pipe, connected at each end with a 6 in. pipe, would only yield the supply of a 6 in. pipe, are not fit persons to be on the water committee, or to manage the business entrusted to them. It is the duty of the Counsels to over-haul this wholesale blundering—and see that justice be done to the city, as well as to the individuals making the lowest bids for the water pipes.

TAX PAYER.

A Falsehood.

Mr. Buckingham, the British itinerant who traveled in the United States and discoursed "most eloquently" as he imagined, about things he knew nothing about, has lately published a statement that "more than one-third of the emigrante from Europe to the United States die within their first three years of residence in that country, though they generally come out in the full vigor of health."

☞ A WORD to those that are consumptive. It is a known and decided fact that consumption of the lungs leads to a speedy death, unless there are some proper means used to arrest the progress of the disease. Have you not witnessed the departure of many of your intimate friends, hastened thither by the strong hand of this disease? Then why not be alarmed for the safety of your own health, and endeavor to secure a longer lease upon this world? Have you not been prevailed upon, time after time, to use Dr. Duncan's Expectorant Remedy, which is prepared expressly for the removal of diseases of the Lungs and Bronchial tubes. A few bottles of this medicine at the first attack, always prevents the disease from settling upon the Lungs. For sale at

Those marked thus (*) are provided with Evans' Safety Guard for the prevention of explosion of boilers.

☞ See advertisement in another column.

☞ Last evening at dark, there were 7 feet water in the channel. The weather is exceedingly cold. There will be a number of departures of steamboats to day, as will be seen by reference to our advertising columns.

☞ Yesterday there were several sales of new Molasses on the wharf, at 32 @ 33c.. Sales of new Sugar at 6¼ in the hhd and 7c. by the bbl.

☞ The U. S. Mail steamer Brunette, Capt. W. Dean, leaves to-day for St. Louis and all intermediate ports. Fine boat and accomodating officers.

☞ The passenger steamer Wisconsin, Capt. Grace, being unavoidably detained, will positively leave this morning at 10 o'clock, for New Orleans and all intermediate ports.

☞ The wharf yesterday presented a very animated appearance. There was more merchandize on the wharf, than we have seen for some time; among the freights, were 645 bbls molasses, and 75 hhds sugar, articles much needed in the city, at this moment. There were beside, quantities of bulk pork, lard, pig metal, flour and various other articles.

☞ The Louisville Journal of the 14th says: The river has been on a stand since night before last —8 feet 1 inch water in the canal by the mark last evening. The river yesterday was again covered with floating ice.

☞ The St. Louis Republican, of Saturday, says: There was no ice floating in the river yesterday afternoon. The navigation is now unobstructed below, but there is not sufficient water on the bars for the largest boats. The Missouri was open at Jeffersonville city last Wednesday; it was unusually low and rising slowly

☞ The St. Louis Reveille of the 11th says:— "The steamer Palestine, in last evening from New Orleans, which port she left on the 30th ult., reports the river clear of ice between this point and Cairo, and in a fair navigable condition; eight feet water in the channel as far up as Cape Girardeau. The Highlander is lying at Cairo, and the Champlain at Island 65, having broken her T head. The Palestine brought no mail, and we are, consequently, without intermediate dates.

The weather is quite mild, and the favorable reports concerning the condition of the river below, will induce an immediate and complete resumption of navigation.

☞ The St. Louis Republican of Dec. 10, says: The Missouri Mail, while aground on Burnham's island, had several of her timbers broken and a hole about seven feet long and fourteen inches wide, cut into her by the heavy floating ice. Seventy hogsheads of coal, and thirty barrels of oysters, in the hold, were thrown overboard to lighten her off

☞ A couple of cards in the St. Louis Republican from passengers in the steamboat Independence, give the lie direct to the statement that the captain of that boat, during a late trip on the Mississippi, treated his German passengers with inhumanity. The editor of the Republican speaks of the captain in high terms.

Phisiology of Genius.

It was noticed by a writer who was present at a meeting of the British Association, that one feature was nearly universal among the philosophers there assembled; namelp a certain expansion of the head, which habit teaches us to connect on all occasions with superior intellect. This is an observation which we have often made at meetings of learned societies; and we have further remarked, that the fact is more frequently to be noticed among men of science—as naturalists, experimental chemists, &c.—than among purely literary men. Wgatever may be said of the internal capcity, thickness of skull is, we apprehend, no mark of mind either way. That of Buchanan is said to have been as thin as paper. On the other hand the brain-caae of Porson, the first Greek scholar of modern times, was discovered to be exceedingly thick. Gall, on being required to reconcile Porson's tenacious memory with so thick a receptacle for it, is said to have replied—"I have nothing to do with how the ideas got into such a skull: but once in, I will defy them ever to get out again."

If there be any feature in which genius always shows itself, it is the eye, which has been aptly called the index of the soul.

"We have seen," says Mr. Jerdan, "every other part of the human face divine without indications of the spirit within—the mouth which spoke out of the talent possessed, and the brow that indicated no powers of the capacious mind—but we never knew a superior nature which the eye did not proclaim." The Greeks and all the Oriental nations regarded the brightness of the eye as a super-natural sign. The emerald eyes of their gods shone with a mysterious splendor through the gloom of the Adytum. Availing themselves of this prevalent belief, imposters have sought to deceive men by an assumed lustre of countenance. Dr. Leyden tells us that Ibn Makha, the founder of the Makmayah sect, hid himself from the public gaze, and covered his features with a veil; asserting that no eye could endure the glory of his countenance. To support this deception, he prepared some burning mirrors, placing them in such a situation that the rays fell upon the faces of those who approached him. Having taken these precautions, he uncovered his face, and directing his votaries to draw nigh, the foremost were struck by the burning rays, and retired exclaiming. "We cannot look upon him, but he gazes upon us."—Many tender and beautiful things have been said of eyes; yet how inferior to the sweet things uttered by themselves! A full eye seems to have been esteemed the most expressive. Such was the eye that enchained the soul of Pericles. The American writer Haliburton declares he would not give a piece of tobacco for the nose, except to tell when a dinner is good; nor a farthing for the mouth, except as a kennel for the tongue; but the eye—"study that," says he, "and you will read any man's heart as plain as a book."

Galileo's eyes were remarkably penetrating; so were those of Linnæus, which were hazel, and possessed that exquisite power of vision which naturalists are generally noted for. Alexander Wilson's eyes were quick, sharp, and intelligent, especially when he was engaged in conversation. This ornithologist visited, when in New York, the celebrated Thomas Paine, author of the "Rights of Man," and describes him as possessing a Bardolph kind of face; "but the penetration and intelligence of his eye bespoke the man of genius and of the world." Shelley's eyes were noted for their beauty. Otway had a thoughtful, speaking eye. Sir Humphrey Davy had "a glowing eye, the finest and brightest," says Lockhart, "that ever I saw." Colley Cibber's eyes were small, but all vivacity and sparkle. When reciting any great deed, Sir Walter Scott's eyes, and his whole countenance, would kindle with a congenial expression. A native of Weimar, describing Goethe, says, "his eyes were like two lights." Hazlitt had an expressive eye. Coleridge's greenish-grey eyes were very quick, yet steady and penetrating. Audubon, speaking of Bewick, says he had "a large head, with fine sparkling eyes, placed farther apart than those of any other man that I have ever seen." To draw a phrenological inference from this observation, it may be concluded that Bewick possessed, in a most wonderful degree, the organ of form- which is indicated by the breadth, between the eyes, or, which is the same thing, by the breadth of the bridge of the nose. The same peculiarity is observable in a celebrated living author, Mr. Thomas Carlyle, whose eyes are placed at an unusual distance apart, and their spiritual intensity of expression is extraordinary, being only equalled in this respect by those of Leigh Hunt, which are singularly fine and expressive, tinged with a watchfulness and melancholy which persecution has put into them, but without dimming the cheerfulness with which the heart and mind ever light them up.

Many authors have been remarkable for excessive mildness of countenance. This was the case with Milton. In some very touching and affecting verses, Spenser has recorded the gentle benignity of Sir Philip Sidney's countenance, which formed the correct index of his temper.—His voice is so sweet and agreeable, that by some of his cotemporaries he is styled nectar tongued Sidney. The countenance of Kirk White was rendered particularly interesting by an air of great humility and patience.

Byron says, nothing is so characteristic of good birth as the smallness of the hands. We believe, however, that small hands are not so common among noblemen, especially those who are addicted to field sports, as among authors, whose fists are rarely employed in any other work but holding the pen, and therefore do not attain to a large and muscular developement. Miss Costello, describing Jasmin, the poetical barber, not only notices his "black, sparkling eyes, of intense expression," but "his handsome hands." Mozart, though not vain of having written the "Requiem," was rather conceited about the proportion of his hands and feet.

A furrowed brow, intent and deep sunk eyes,
Fair hair, lean cheeks, are mine, and aspect bold;
The proud quick lip, where seldom smiles arise;
Bent head and fine formed neck; breast rough and cold;
Limbs well composed; simple in dress, yet choice;
Swift or to move, act, think, or thoughts unfold;
Temperate, firm, kind, unused to flattering lies;
Adverse to world, adverse to me of old.
Ofttimes alone and mournful. Evermore
Most pensive—all unmoved by hope or fear;
But, shunning made himself, and by anger prone—
My subtle reason speaks: but ah! I rave;
Twixt vice and virtue, hardly know to steer,
Death may for me have faine and rest in store.

Valuable Real Estate for Sale.

THIRTY ACRES OF GROUND, having an extensive front on the South bank of the Monongahela, (our principal business river where all the steamers lie, and where the heavy business of the city is done,) being the west end of the Borough of Birmingham, laid out into 230 lots of 24 by 100 feet, for Residences, and 96 by 300 feet for Manufactories, fronting on 50 feet streets, and extending back 300 feet each.
TEN ACRES similarly situated and laid out, adjoining the East end of Birmingham.
THIRTY ACRES OF COAL HILL LOTS, running from near the Bridge toward Birmingham, fronting on the two Turnpikes.
These are well known as the most advantageous locations about Pittsburgh, or in the world, for Manufacturing, inexhaustible mines of Coal of the richest and best quality, at hand, and furnished much cheaper than any other place about the City, and being nearly opposite the City Steamboat landing.
For Residences, also, there are no more beautiful, healthy, and convenient locations for those engaged in business in the City; but a few minutes ride or walk from the beautiful Suspension Wire Bridge; some of the most commanding fine views of the two Cities, three rivers and surrounding country.
We would prefer to selling, that Capitalists would join us in the erection of manufactories and other improvements. There is a stratum of Coal beneath the surface of 12 to 15 feet in thickness. A large body of the ground also is above the common level, and valuable for making Brick. It being a portion of an undivided estate for the past forty years, has thus been kept out of the market. Could the very advantageous terms to purchase have been accepted, it would long since have all been sold and compactly built up. It will be sold at less than other property as near the City in other directions (and we particularly invite those interested to compare the prices), and must rapidly increase in value beyond other property, as every one can see from its great resources and advantageous location, presenting an object of the most certain and lucrative investment, for manufacturing the most advantageous, and for residence the most desirable, all of which is more fully set forth and confirmed, as well as other general information in regard to it and our city, in a pamphlet issued by us, and to be had of Booksellers in this and Eastern cities. If not disposed of previously, it will be sold entire, or in whole or in part of either one of the plots, on Monday, the 25th day of May next, at 10 o'clock, A. M. Terms moderate.

A Stubborn Fact in Mesmerism!

Statement of Mrs. Spence.

☞ I had been suffering for about five weeks from what is termed the "Milk Leg," and during that time experienced much pain, and was considered in a very low and critical situation. It had been lanced twice by the attending physician, causing me great pain, and affording me no improvement or relief. Before it was to be lanced for the third time, and with the hope of mitigating the agony of that operation, I was induced by a friend to submit myself to be magnetized previous to the application of the lancet. For this purpose, Mr. P. A. Westervelt visited me, and mesmerized me. After the first passing, I was so much relieved as to be able to enjoy a good sleep, which I had not previously done for a long time. By the repetition of the manipulations, I became so much relieved from pain, that I concluded not to undergo a third surgical operation, and persisted in the mesmeric treatment until the disease dissipated itself by a copious discharge, through the previously-lanced places, resulting in a perfect cure. It is proper to say that after the first application of mesmerism, I discontinued the use of medicine altogether, and trusted alone to the manipulations. At the time the mesmeric treatment was commenced, I was unable to stand or even to change my position in bed, without much suffering. In three weeks after the commencement of this treatment, I was able to walk about the streets without difficulty. M. E. SPENCE.

City of Pittsburgh, ss.

Before me, an Alderman in and for said city, personally came M. E. Spence, who being duly affirmed, sayeth: that the facts set forth in the foregoing statement is just and true to the best of her knowledge, and belief.
M. E. SPENCE.
Affirmed and subscribed, this 27th day of October, 1845.
R. MORROW.

☞ The public are here presented with a regularly authenticated testimonial of the cure of a disease, which has in numerous instances, baffled the skill of the medical faculty, and entailed helplessness and suffering on its unhappy subjects; a cure too, be it remembered, whose prominent feature is, by its action in all cases, to subdue pain—never to produce it. I am in possession of certificates from individuals who have been restored to health under my hands, from indisposition of many years standing. Those testimonials will be made public in due time, and in the mean while may be seen at my residence. Among the disorders cured, may be mentioned—Epilepsy, Flow of the Blood to the Head, Rheumatism, Headache, Toothache, Nervous Tremblings, &c.

Explosion of Steam Boilers.

EVANS' ALLOY SAFETY GUARD, and Evans' Metallic Expansion Safety Guard.—The subscriber respectfully informs the public that he has procured a Patent for his Metallic Expansion Safety Guard, and is now prepared to manufacture the same, as well as his well known Alloy Safety Guard, upon which he has also made an improvement.

Steam Boat owners and others can now make a choice of either of the two inventions, and procure them from the original inventor, without the expense or danger of infringing, which would certainly follow upon any infringement of his patents. He would respectfully invite the public to call at his office, and examine his inventions, which he will cheerfully explain by working models.

Thankful for past favors, he flatters himself that his long and unremitted exertions to the subject of preventing explosions will ensure him a continuance of public patronage.
C. EVANS.

FOR SAFETY

Travelers should select a Boat provided with Evans' Safety Guards, for preventing explosions of steam boilers. It would be well for the traveling community to bear in mind their security depends entirely upon their own encouragement of boats that have or may be at the expense of preparing the above apparatus. And that every individual making such selection is contributing towards a general introduction of an invention admitted by all men who understand the principles of the Steam Engine, to be a sure preventative against those dreadful disasters. This invention has been applied to upwards of 100 steamers, and travelers are cautioned against being deceived by men representing their boats as having Safety Guards, when they are not as secured against explosions. Examine the show bills and advertisements for correct information.

The subscriber has removed his Office and Safety Guard Factory to his residence in Penn street, near Water, where he will make draughts, write out specifications, and do all that is necessary to procure patents. He will also act as agent in introducing and disposing of new inventions.

FROM FIFTY TO ONE HUNDRED LOTS IN ALLEGHENY CITY, FOR SALE.—The undersigned offers for sale, on accomodating terms, from fifty to one hundred lots in Allegheny city, the titles to which are indisputable. These lots are twenty four feet in front, running back from eighty to one hundred and forty feet, except the corner lots, which vary from one hundred to upwards of two hundred feet front. They are pleasantly situated in the First Ward, on the bank of the Ohio river, comprising the only portion of Allegheny City suitable for a good Steamboat, Ferry landing, and are well calculated for residences, extensive Manufacturing establishments, or other purposes. The Omnibus from the bridge and the Stage for Beaver pass the property, daily, the former at short intervals, and Coal can be procured from the opposite side of the Ohio, at any time in the fall of the year. Manufacturers can obtain the quantity of ground necessary, upon very reasonable terms, and will find it to possess peculiar advantages for such purposes. Mechanics, river men and others will find it an excellent location for the erection of dwellings. A lot of ground can be obtained for a comparatively small sum, by calling upon the subscribers, on the premises.
